ve arrived at the close of another year many experiences in the moral and world, we can, with patriotic pride, ourselves a happy and united people. er may have been the discussions in -whatever my have been the lanared by members representing different ections of the Union, we have still the felicity of knowing that no one has yet proposed the disruption of that Confederacy under which we have grown to be a Nation, commanding the respect and admiration of all enhantened and

Lberty-loving populations. As the year closes, we find ourselves trought face to face with the s irring events of the part, and are compe'led to recognize ac's which unmistakably point to charges in the future which must affect the permanent organization of a Na ional party. The question with most men is not whether the organization shall be empipotent, or whether it shall be organized upon a basis upon which Univaloving men can stand, but whether car perpeate saimated Union sentimen s, or by rentiments hastile to the perpetuity of the trese at Confederation.

The people core nothing for party-they are ural erable attached to the Union-and in entering upon a New Year they desire, above all their lova feeli gs to mere party ends. Trey representatives in Congress, who either satisfy themselves with materating a demosiones, or who allow sectional prejutes to gove n their tion o the peace and weifare of the Union, and when those who are entrusted with the high konor of representing this Union sentiment are phatically prenounce their condemnation. It is time for the reople to speak out : and we are greatly mistaken if they do not-when the opportunity offers -show by their votes that they are opposed to the course pursued by those who have, by fair words and specious pretensions, gained their confidence.

PRESENTATION BOOKS .- W. A. TOWNSEND & Co., 46 Walker street, have been getting up some fine books for the holidays which possess more than an ephemeral value.

Mount Vernon and its Associatious, by BENSON J. LOSSING, author of the "Field Book of the Revolution," &c., is one, and not the least valuable. Those who know mr. Lossing's skill in collecting and weaving together facts and enecdotes which no one else would this k of will understand at once that this book forms a picture of the priva'e and domestic life of WABHINGTON which can be found in no other shape. M: Boyes said the South feels that on this slavery question hangs their very being, because you cannot everthrow the system on which their civilization and social fabric rests without a war of races. With the South, it is therefore a question of life and death. The arch-find could not have found a device more effectual than a sectional party to convoles this great Sepublic. Jarrameon looked on a sectional levue with regard to slavery as one fatal to the Union, but he was consoled with the reflection that he would not live to see the day of disaster.

The Republican party were purely sectional and did not propose the modification of any laws outside of the Shavery question. They proposed a strictly sectional test. He proceeded to show that this is a government of delegated powers. He looked to the Republican organization generally to according the control of the Northern States they have interpreted all the obstacles they consain tour opicies. In eight of the Northern States they have interposed all the obstacles they could to prevent the enforcement of that plain clause in the Constitution providing for the rendition of figitive slaves. Mr. Szwano had said you must receive the parting fugitive and defend him as you would household wrong.

in the Constitution providing for the rendicion of figitive siaves. Mr. Sawand had said you must receive the parting fugitive and defead him as you would household goods.

Mr. Sawaros, in reply to Mr. Boves, said he understood the position of the Republican party on the Fugitive Slave law. There were differences among them as to what a fugitive slave law should be, and whether the provisions of the Constitution makes it obligatory on a State to provide the remedy, or whether under the Constitution it belongs to ton gress. For himself, if it were an original question, he should hold that the power was vested in the State, but he held to the contemporaneous construction of the Constitution which had been acted on by all departments of the government, and which had been acquierced in by the people and ought to be see guized. He concludes the constitutional powers to Congress to pass a figitive slave law. By far as the law of 1850 was congerned the sid net believe it was constitutional in its details, as to the mode provid dor making proofs. He wanted a law which would be available not to encourage himspring uncer the color of the law, and the capture of persone not slaves. The judicial power of the Uu ted Saves vested by the Constitution in judges appointed by the President and confirmed by the Braste, to sit in judgment as to wasther the president and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and confirmed by the judge and not by the frestdent, and wasther on not there is a profest to put into alsevery a freeman. He knew a pursual to fact, that the law the right to a kabeas corpus, to test the question. As to the process under which he for the scale of a sea, and wasther or not there is a profest to put into alsevery a freeman. He knew a portion Ohio legulature by a Democrat, declaring that it was the imparative duty of the State to make such a law to sarry ontube constitute nationals in case the Foderm' law could not be executed, and Mr. Stansan's party voted sgalas that also. In reply to his obligague, he said he himself beard a divisioguished at didas for governor of O. to decounce the basis of mixed representation, and it became the duty of the D mee at of that State the explain that sampled Mr. Stansan said his colleague and heard of no Republican saking for a change of the Constitution in this respect.

Mr. Cox replied that his colleague did not give a correct less of the Republican party in Oho. He was not the exponent of its dominant social. He was a nahogany White, slightly verified with Republicanism when you go to Ohio, but here it was affected to make the country believe it was missional, to give it the color of nationality.

Mr. Stansan claimed to funderstand as well what the Republican party is as he celleage. He was quite as much an exponent of its principe as his colleague was. He was a member of the tracepe as his colleague was. He was a member of the tracepe as his colleague mass to when he said the Republican party in Only its sectional. The Republican party in Only its sectional of the tracepe of the fathers of the Republican and will make it their platform, and for its support quote the opinion of the fathers of the Republic.

Mr. Kullingers said he had beard Republicans de-
